MEMORANDUM OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Bill gives effect to the constitutional requirement of Article 209(5) of the Constitution by defining the manner in which the national government, through the National Treasury may exercise its policy oversight role and it establishes the process whereby the county governments may exercise their taxation authority.

The Bill further regulates the exercise by county governments of their power to impose taxes, levies and duties by providing for the compliance by a proposed county government tax, with the Constitution and the provisions of this Bill and to ensure that county government proposals are dealt with in accordance with Article 6(3) of the Constitution.

The Bill does not set specific taxes that a county government may enact. Responsibility for initiating a county government tax proposal rests with county government and they may propose any tax in accordance with the Constitution. Rather, the Bill regulates the process by which county government taxes are imposed.
